On his way to the village, he saw a monk working in the field, so he stopped to talk to the monk, “I’m on my way to the village in the valley. Can you tell me what it is like?”

The monk raised his head and looked at the man and asked him where he came from.

The man answered, "I come from a village in the mountain."

“What is the village like?” the monk asked. “Terrible!” the man exclaimed. “No one there spoke my language. I had to sleep on the dirty floor. They provided me with some sorts of meat. And the weather was unpleasant. ”

“Then I think you will find that the village of the valley is the same,” the monk answered.

A few hours later, another traveler passed by and asked the monk the same question.

“Where do you come from?” asked the monk.

“I come from a village in the mountain,” the man answered.

“And what is the village like?” the monk asked.

“Interesting!” the man replied. “No one there spoke my language, so I found it interesting to communicate with my body languages and facial expressions. Nowadays green food is very popular around China. Everyone knows they need green food and good health, but not all the people know about what green food is. Some years ago, while I was studying in Grade Seven, my teacher asked us to learn something about green food by ourselves. We didn't have any ideas at first. And then our four-member group had a discussion and decided to do some research in a supermarket. Two of us wrote down the names of the green food on the shelves(货架). The other two asked customers some questions like “Do you know what green food is?”, “How often do you buy green food?” and so on. More than 30 customers answered our questions! Later each group in our class wrote a research report on green food and handed it in. When our teacher received these reports, she was very pleased. Our teacher chose the excellent ones and put them up on the wall of the classroom. Ours was among them! We not only learned a lot about green food but also knew how to keep healthy.

After that, I always choose green food for my meals, and I also hope there will be more people to choose green food in their daily life.
